Langley Murder Mystery

Feb. 25, 2012 | 10 a.m.-6 p.m. | $5/Liberty, $10/Guest

For the past 24 years there has been a murder in the small town of Langley, Washington. It happens once a year, always in late February. Each year the mystery is solved, yet each year it happens again.

No, this isn't the residence of a serial killer suffering from Seasonal Affective Disorder - It's the Langley Mystery Weekend - when the entire town participates in an elaborate murder mystery.

Upon arrival in Langley, you will receive a copy of the Langley Gazette, published only once a year for the occasion. It provides an account of the murder, a map of the town, and a list of places where you can find clues: a clothing store, the local thrift shop, a yarn shop, and more. It's a good opportunity to see Langley and visit the local attractions.

Langley residents take part as actors, playing the role of suspects and persons of interest. You can ask questions of the actors and the shopkeepers to build your case and hopefully solve the mystery.

Fee includes transportation and your copy of the Langley Gazette. Please dress for the weather and bring extra money for food and beverages. Please register by Thursday, Feb. 23.
